

Increase HR Data Accuracy and Reduce Risk

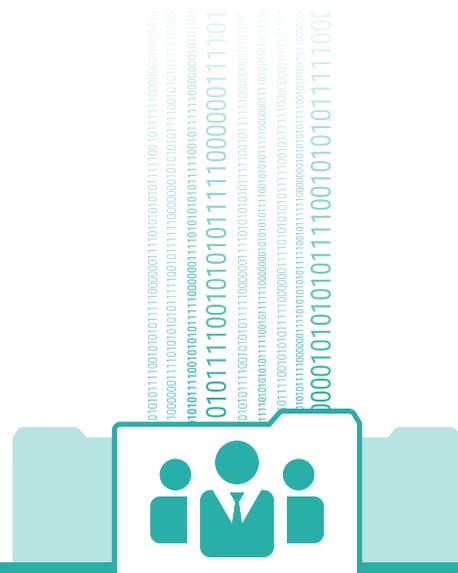

Critical decisions in human resources are made every day based on the data available. When data is spread throughout an organization in multiple silos, departments, and file formats, decisions become challenging and risky. While your HR information system is the primary source of record for an employee, information also exists in documents, emails, and file shares outside of HR.

Grooper has experience with simplifying document and data management for human resources. Integrating directly with your human resources information system, Grooper transforms paper documents and electronic data, allowing you the ability to fully leverage your information like never before. Grooper meets HIPAA and privacy compliance through every step of data collection by controlling who can access sensitive information.

Grooper acquires information from multiple sources, organizes it correctly, and extracts the vital information, so data can no longer hide inside HR-related documents. Grooper connects to virtually any content management system, so documents in any silo can be accessed. The software's artificial intelligence distinguishes minor details in text and phrases that lead to very different interpretations.

By reducing research time, Grooper gives your staff the ability to analyze the information and make informed decisions with data at your fingertips. This efficiency gain enables your HR professionals to strategically focus on improving the culture of your organization, develop a talent pipeline, and engage with employees to drive business results.

Stop guessing whether you have an accurate snapshot of the entire employee file before making your next important decision.

Possibilities of Leveraging the Power of Grooper

- Feed analytics tools to provide rapid insight into business-critical information
- Identify, collect, and extract employee information from supervisors to HR
- Locate personnel and benefits documents in any file format or location
- Flag information that needs to be moved to a more secure area
- Extract any data off paper documents
- Automate the classification of hundreds of document types
- Optimize processes with the ability to easily collect data
- Protect employee PII by redacting sensitive information
- Easily integrate with HR systems
- Solutions for virtually every department

Allow your data to work with you, not against you, by having the right information at the right time and the right cost.

Greater Efficiency, Rapid ROI, and Easy to Operate

No two organizations are exactly alike. That's why Grooper was specifically designed to adapt to your environment. Built by a team with decades of document and information migration experience, Grooper helps organizations of any size automate paper-centric procedures. Find out how Grooper can rapidly improve the efficiency of core departments in your organization.

